

Alison Premo Black

Chief Economist

American Road & Transportation Builders Association

Black manages the ARTBA's economics staff and is responsible for more than 75 studies examining national and state transportation funding and investment patterns, including the association's annual modal forecast. Black completed her Ph.D. in economics at The George Washington University and holds an M.A. in international economics and Latin American studies from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.