Immigrant Survivors of Human Trafficking and Other Serious Crimes

According to Florida legislative staff, the federal Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act of 2000 enables immigrant victims of human trafficking to get certain federal benefits once their status in the U.S. is determined.

Florida Chapter 2007-162 directs the state department of children and family services to establish a state-funded benefit program for immigrant victims of human trafficking, domestic violence and other serious crimes while their eligibility for federal benefits under the aforementioned federal Act is being determined.

The Florida Act:
- applies to “immigrant victims of human trafficking, domestic violence and other serious crimes” who have filed or are preparing to file specified federal applications;
- states that victims of human trafficking, domestic violence and other serious crimes are eligible for state funded benefits to the same extent as people who are admitted to the United States as refugees under specified circumstances;
- provides a list of documents that in addition to a sworn statement, suffices as evidence that an applicant has been a victim of human trafficking; and
- permits the state department of children and family services to develop a public awareness campaign about the program.

(Title, enacting clause, etc.)

Section 1. [Short Title.] This Act shall be entitled “An Act to Provide State Services Relating to Immigrant Survivors of Human Trafficking and Other Serious Crimes.”

Section 2. [Services to Immigrant Survivors of Serious Crimes.] The [Department of Children and Family Services] shall:
- (1) Provide services to immigrant survivors of human trafficking, domestic violence, and other serious crimes, during the interim period between the time the survivor applies for a visa and receives such visa from the United States Department of Homeland Security or receives certification from the United States Department of Health and Human Services;
- (2) Ensure that immigrant survivors of serious crimes are eligible to receive existing state and local benefits and services to the same extent that refugees receive those benefits and services;
- (3) Ensure that immigrant survivors of serious crimes have access to state-funded services that are equivalent to the federal programs that provide cash, medical services, and social service for refugees;
- (4) Provide survivors of serious crimes with medical care, mental health care, and basic assistance in order to help them secure housing, food, and supportive services;
(5) Create a state-funded component of the cash, medical, and social services programs for refugees for the purpose of serving immigrant survivors during the temporary period while they wait for federal processing to be completed;

(6) Provide that a sworn statement by a survivor is sufficient evidence for the purposes of determining eligibility if that statement is supported by at least one item of additional evidence, including, but not limited to:

(a) police and court records;
(b) news articles;
(c) documentation from a professional agency;
(d) physical evidence; or
(e) a statement from an individual having knowledge of the circumstances providing the basis for the claim; and

(7) Develop a public-awareness program for employers and other organizations that may come into contact with immigrant survivors of human trafficking in order to provide education and raise awareness of the problem.
